States have adopted 231 new abortion restrictions since the 2010 midterm elections swept abortion opponents into power in state capitals across the country.

This is more than the total number enacted in the entire previous decade.

--Guttmacher Institute
Hostility to Abortion Rights has Grown

In 2000, 31% of women of reproductive age lived in a state hostile to abortion rights – with no woman living in a state considered extremely hostile.

By 2014, 57% lived in a state that is either hostile or extremely hostile to abortion rights.

--Guttmacher Institute
“Our Opponents want to limit not just affordable access, but all access to abortion and birth control, whether it is backed by the government, by employers, or purchased by private citizens.”

--Sandra Fluke, Attorney, California Senate Candidate
